

SEED TIME

The experienced farmer has learned that some grains require far different soil than others; some crops need different handling than others. He knows that a great deal depends upon right planting at the right time, and that the soil must be kept enriched. No use of complaining in summer about a mistake made in the spring. Decide before the seed is planted.

The best time to remedy wasting conditions in the human body is before the evil is too deep rooted. At the first evidence of loss of flesh

CHAPTER XXIII.

BUT their case was a very evil one. Had the guns been lost, so that they might be turned upon the door, all further resistance would have been vain, but Du Lhut's presence of mind had saved them from that danger. The two guns upon the river face and the canoes were safe, for they were commanded by the windows of the house. But their numbers were terribly reduced, and those who were left were weary and wounded and spent. Nineteen had gained the house, but one had been shot through the body, while a second had his shoulder cleft by a tomahawk and could no longer raise his musket. Du Lhut, De la Noue and De Catinat were uninjured, but Ephraim Savage had a bullet hole in his forearm and Amos was bleeding from a cut upon the face.

A few shots from the barricaded windows sufficed to clear the inclosure, for it was all exposed to their aim, but on the other hand the Indians had the shelter of the stockade now, and from the farther side of it they kept up a fierce fire upon the windows. Half a dozen of the censeitaires returned the fusillade, while the leaders consulted as to what had best be done.

"We have twenty-five women and fourteen children," said the seigneur. "I am sure that you will agree with me, gentlemen, that our first duty is toward them. Some of you, like myself, have lost sons or brothers this day. Let us at least save our wives and sisters."

"No Iroquois canoes have passed up the river," said one of the Canadians. "If the women start in the darkness they can get away to the fort."

"By Ste. Anne of Beupre!," exclaimed Du Lhut, "I think it would be well if you could get your men out of this also, for I cannot see how it is to be held until morning."

"Tut! tut! What nonsense is this!" cried De la Noue. "Are we to abandon the manor house of Ste. Marie to the first gang of savages who choose to make an attack upon it? No, no, gentlemen; there are still nearly a score of us, and when the garrison learns that we are so pressed, which will be by tomorrow morning at the latest, they will certainly send us relief."

"If you stand by the fort I will not desert you," said Du Lhut, "and yet it is a pity to sacrifice brave men for nothing."

"The canoes will hardly hold the women and children as it is," cried Theurlet. "There are but two large and four small. There is not space for a single man."

The Iroquois were very quiet now, and an occasional dropping shot from the trees or the stockade was the only sign of their presence. The twilight was gathering in and the sun had already sunk beneath the treetops. Leaving a watchman at each window, the leaders went round to the back of the house, where the canoes were lying upon the bank. There were no signs of the enemy upon the river to the north of them.

"We are in luck," said Amos. "The clouds are gathering, and there will be little light."

"It is luck, indeed, since the moon is only three days past the full," answered Du Lhut. "I wonder that the Iroquois have not cut us off upon the water, but it is likely that their canoes have gone south to bring up another war party."

"In an hour it might be dark enough to start."

"I think that there is rain in those clouds, and that will make it darker still."

The women and children were assembled, and their places in each boat were assigned to them. To Omega, the Indian wife of the seigneur, who was as wary and as experienced as a war sachem of her people, the command of the women was intrusted.

"It is not very far, Adele," said De Catinat. "It is but a league or two."

"But I do not wish to leave you, Amory. We have been together in all our troubles."

"My dear love, you will tell them at the fort how things are with us, and they will bring us help."

"Let the others do that, and I will stay. I will not be useless, Amory. Omega has taught me to load a gun. I will not be afraid, indeed I will not."

"You must not ask it, Adele. It is impossible, child. I could not let you stay. It is for my sake, dear. You do not know what a load it will be from my heart when I know that you are safe. And you need not be afraid for me. We can easily hold the place until morning."

Adele was silent, but her hands tightened upon his arm. Her husband was still endeavoring to reassure her when a groan burst from the watcher in the window which overlooked the stream.

"There is a canoe on the river to the north of us!" he cried.

"How many warriors are in it?" asked the seigneur.

"I cannot see. The light is not very good, and it is in the shadow of the bank."

"Which way is it coming?"

"It is coming this way. Ah, it shoots out into the open now, and I can see it! May the good Lord be praised!"

"What is it then?" cried De la Noue impatiently.

"It is not an Iroquois canoe. There is out one man in it. He is a Canadian."

"A Canadian!" cried Du Lhut, springing up to the window. "Who but a madman would venture into such a hornet's nest alone? Ah, yes; I can see him now. He keeps well out from the bank to avoid their fire. Now he is in midstream, and he turns toward us."

"It is a Jesuit," said one, craning his neck. "They are everywhere there is most danger."

"No. I can see his capote," said another. "It is a Franciscan friar."

An instant later there was the sound of a canoe grounding upon the pebbles, the door was unbarred, and a man strode in attired in the long, dark gown of the Franciscans. He cast a rapid glance around and then, stepping up to De Catinat, laid his hand upon his shoulder.

"So! You have not escaped me," said he. "We have caught the evil seed before it had time to root."

"What do you mean, father?" asked the seigneur. "You have made some mistake. This is my good friend Amory de Catinat, of a noble French family."

"This is Amory de Catinat, the heretic and Huguenot!" cried the monk. "I have followed him up the St. Lawrence, and I have followed him up the Richelieu, and I would have followed him to the world's end if I could but bring him back with me."

"Tut, father! Your zeal carries you too far," said the seigneur. "Whither would you take my friend, then?"

"He shall go back to France with his wife. There is no place in Canada for heretics."

Du Lhut burst out laughing. "By Ste. Anne, father," said he, "if you could take us all back to France at present we should be very much your debtors."

"And you will remember," said De la Noue sternly, "that you are under my roof and that you are speaking of my guest."

But the friar was not to be abashed. "Look at this," said he, whipping a paper out of his bosom. "It is signed by the governor, and calls upon you, under pain of the king's displeasure, to return this man to Quebec. But I have you now and I shall never leave you until I see you on board of the ship which will carry you and your wife back to France."

De Catinat could but admire the energy and tenacity of the man.

"It seems to me, father, that you would have shone more as a soldier than as a follower of Christ," said he, "but since you have followed us here and since there is no getting away we may settle this question at some later time."

A great brown cloud had overspread the heavens and the night had fallen so rapidly that they could hardly see the gleam of the river in front of them. The savages in the woods and behind the captured stockade were quiet, save for an occasional shot. Suddenly a dull red glow began to show above one of the roofs of the cottages.

"They have set it on fire!" cried Du Lhut. "The canoes must go at once, for the river will soon be as light as day. In! in! There is not an instant to be lost!"

There was no time for leave taking. One impassioned kiss and Adele was torn away and thrust into the smallest canoe, which she shared with Omega, two children and an unmarried girl. The others rushed into their places, and in a few moments they had pushed off and had vanished into the drift and the darkness. The great cloud had broken and the rain pattered heavily on the roof.

"Thank God for this storm!" murmured Du Lhut. "It will prevent the cottages from blazing up too quickly."

But he had forgotten that, though the roofs might be wet, the interior was as dry as tinder. He had hardly spoken before a great yellow tongue of flame licked out of one of the windows, and again and again, until suddenly half of the roof fell in, and the cottage was blazing like a pitch bucket. The flames blazed and sputtered in the pouring rain; but, fed from below, they grew still higher and fiercer, flashing redly upon the great trees and turning their trunks to burnished brass. Their light made the inclosure and the manor house as clear as day and exposed the whole long stretch of the river. A fearful yell from the woods announced that the savages had seen the canoes.

"They are rushing through the woods. They are making for the water's edge," cried De Catinat.

"They have some canoes down there," said Du Lhut.

"But they must pass us," cried the seigneur of Ste. Marie. "Get down to the cannon and see if you cannot stop them."

They had hardly reached the guns when two large canoes filled with warriors shot out from among the reeds below the fort.

"Jean, you are our best shot," cried De la Noue. "Lay for her as she passes the great pine tree. Lambert, do you take the other gun."

The two wrinkled old artillerymen glanced along their guns and waited for the canoes to come abreast of them. The fire blazed higher and higher, and the broad river lay like a sheet of dull metal, with the two dark lines which marked the canoes sweeping swiftly down the center. One was fifty yards in front of the other, but in each the Indians were bending to their paddles and pulling frantically, while their comrades from the wooded shores whooped them on to fresh exertions. The fugitives had already disappeared around the bend of the river.

As the first canoe came abreast of the lower of the two guns the Canadian made the sign of the cross over the touchhole and fired. A cheer and then a groan went up from the eager watchers. The charge had struck the surface close to the mark and dashed such a shower of water over it that for an instant it looked as if it had been sunk. The next moment, however, the splash subsided, and the canoe shot away uninjured save that one of the rowers had dropped his paddle, while his head fell forward upon the back of the man in front of him. The second gunner sighted the same canoe as it came abreast of him.

It was a beautiful shot. The whole charge took the canoe about six feet behind the bow and doubled her up like an eggshell. Before the smoke had cleared she had foundered, and the second canoe had paused to pick up some of the wounded men.

"Quick, quick!" cried the seigneur. "Load the gun! We may get the second one yet!"

But it was not to be. Long before they could get it ready the Iroquois had picked up their wounded warriors and were pulling madly downstream. As they shot away the fire died suddenly down in the burning cottages, and the rain and the darkness closed in upon them once more.

"My God!" cried De Catinat furcively. "They will be taken! Let us abandon this place, take a boat and follow them! Come, come! Not an instant is to be lost!"

"I do not think that they will be caught," said Du Lhut, laying his hand soothingly upon his shoulder. "Do not fear. They had a long start, and the women here can paddle as well as the men. Besides, these canoes of the Mohawks are not as swift as the Algonquin birch barks which we use. In any case, it is impossible to follow, for we have no boat."

"There is one lying there."

"Ah, it will but hold a single man. It is that in which the friar came."

"Then I am going in that! My place is with Adele!"

He fung open the door, rushed out and was about to push off the frail skiff when some one sprang past him and with a blow from a hatchet stove in the side of the boat.

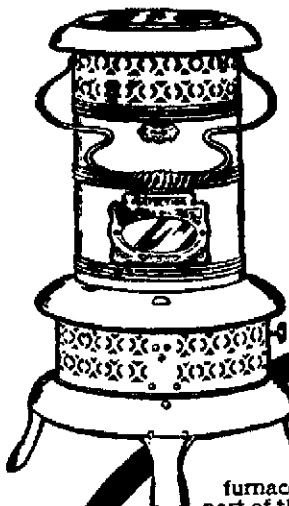

"It is my boat," said the friar, throwing down his ax and folding his arms. "I have found you and you shall not escape me again."

The hot blood flushed to the soldier's head, and, picking up the ax, he took a quick step forward. The light from the open door shone upon the grave, harsh face of the friar, but not a muscle twitched nor a feature changed as he saw the ax whirl up in the hands of a furious man. He only signed himself with the cross and muttered a Latin prayer under his breath. It was that composure which saved his life. De Catinat hurled down the ax again with a bitter curse and was turning away from the shattered boat when in an instant, without a warning, the great door of the manor house crashed inward and a flood of whooping savages burst into the house.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The fifty-second annual Teachers' Institute of Bedford county will close today. A rather hasty, though careful, reading of the notes furnished by our representative at the institute leads to the conclusion that good work has been done. The County Superintendent is to be congratulated on having secured so strong a corps of instructors—who have not "peddled patent processes and devices"—near cuts by which the mind can be developed and fed.

Prof. Muir struck from the shoulder when he declared, "The teacher with a method never taught anything." By this, of course, he meant the teacher who, in his ardent discipleship of some enthusiast has committed the rules formulated by that enthusiast and constantly strives to follow his stereotyped forms. The teachers' institutes of the past in this county have been successes but there have been times when instructors have lead young teachers through the educational swamps in the paths directed by mental ignes fatui. The instructors this week, beneath the surface and in plain view, have emphasized the importance of the teacher's exercising his judgment and employing his common sense both as to matter and method.

The path of education's history is lined with exploded theories and educational crimes have come to realize that common-sense principles and processes must be adapted to the capabilities of the taught. There are, of course, certain foundation principles that must be employed. Inspire pupils to work and use processes that will necessitate the exercise of the student mind and results will follow. The work of this institute should, and no doubt will, leave a deep impress.

A NOTORIOUS LIE

No Rocks Falling From Roof of Hipple's Cave.

The following notice appeared some time since in the several papers and is clipped from an Altoona paper: "The long cave across the Bedford county line not far from Woodbury has been closed to the public on account of its dangerous condition. Ever since the San Francisco earthquake high roofs have been dropping from the boulders in all parts of the cavern, and lately with such frequency as to be positively dangerous to sightseers. Prior to the earthquake the oldest inhabitants of the vicinity had never known a stone to fall."

"A number of summer resort promoters were just about ready to purchase the cave, which is a mile long, and establish a great natural resort, lighting the underground passages with electricity, and otherwise enhancing its value, when they got word the authorities had closed it to the public."

That "summer resort promoters were just about ready to purchase the cave" is a circumstance that was never known to any citizen in the vicinity, and that boulders have been falling from the high roof "since the San Francisco earthquake," is a wilful and malicious lie.

The cave has never been closed to the public and has been frequently visited since the earthquake. Notwithstanding the grandeur of this great cave as it has already been explored with its grand stalactites and other formations, the owner has employed a surveyor to measure and map out the already explored parts, and intends to enter those parts of the cave which have never yet been explored. It is a never certain that Hipple's Cave now than did at any former period, so that the inventor of the article above quoted may be branded as a scoundrel and a liar.

Mr. George Z. Replogle of Woodbury, the present owner of the Cave Farm, is an excellent gentleman of obliging disposition, who will take pleasure in showing anyone this remarkable curiosity.

Brown-Smouee

John Howard Brown of Altoona, formerly of Waterside, this county, and Miss Clara Virginia Smouee of Waterside were married in Altoona Tuesday evening by Rev. Walter S. Long.

Death of Susan Nelson

The village of Cessna and vicinity suffered a terrible loss on December 13, 1906, when Mrs. Nelson crossed the Jordan into land of Beulah, leaving us never to return in the person of Mother Nelson. Mrs. Nelson was 73 years, 11 months and two days of age. Six months ago we all thought her life would be a long and yet very useful one to all of us. She was the second wife of Judge Nelson and a very devoted one at that; devoted to her husband and to her children. The Nelson family has always been casting a commanding influence for good upon the community. Now the influence has widened, and the children of the dear mother are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the United States. The writer has never heard of such a noble band of men and women as the children of Mother Nelson, as a whole, prove to be.

The following children survive: William N., Santa Anna, Cal.; J. W., Marshfield, Mo.; Howard B., Carrollton, Ill.; Mrs. Dora Geary, Washington, D. C.; Harry D., Mrs. Clara M. Hoover and Mrs. Minnie McCalm, Cessna; Charles C., Phillipsburg; Mrs. Alice Imler, Henderson, Md.; Prof. Burton E., Racine, Wis.; Frank R., Altoona; Mrs. Nettie Wolf, Bedford, and Mrs. Estella Walker, Cessna.

One naturally tries to solve this problem, namely: "Where find the key to the manhood and womanhood exemplified in these children?" Courageous is the discoverer of a new world; great is the inventor of modern wonders, but I firmly believe that greater still is the mother of thirteen children who possesses the tact and skill to break down the iron doors to futurity and thus be enabled to rear her flock so as to make out of them what the Nelson children prove to be—great, indeed, is the mother who lays the stepping stones upon which her flock can walk to victory in this twentieth century. Mother Nelson did all this and vastly more.

"Woman's empire, holier, more refined, moulds, moves and sways the fallen yet God-breathed mind. Lifting the earth-crushed heart to hope and heaven."

As a neighbor Mrs. Nelson was an ideal. At any hour of the night, no matter what the thermometer registered, she would go on an errand of mercy. Who will take her place? Where find a soul who possessed a "bigger" heart? The secret of all her good deeds lay in the fact that "she loved her neighbor as herself." Her sunny face and hearty handshake with a "God bless you, brother" as a message from the bottom of her heart, convinced you that there was a good woman in the person of Mrs. Nelson.

Among those who built and canceled the debt on the Mt. Smith church, Mother Nelson was in the front rank. She was an old time Methodist; a credit to the faith, an honor to the church, and a living witness to the fact that the "I know" in her religion, which kept her all through life, was genuine, and all that was required when she came to die. While there is an empty chair and couch, bleeding hearts, painful sighs, a lonely old homestead, there is one more jewel, we hope, in God's Royal Diadem. She was ready and prepared to die.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

COUNTY INSTITUTE

health of the persons they employ as teachers, and spoke of the time when it was prevalent in some sections that an evidence of consumption in a young man would warrant him in being made a minister and if there were no chance for him there he might teach school. The speaker held that good health is the foundation of effective teaching and that it promotes good morals. No teacher who has that "frazzled out" feeling in her nerves can do good work. He holds to the opinion that so long as one keeps in good health and has a cheerful disposition, and does not become a back number in the profession, increase in years makes his teaching more valuable.

Dr. Lowden told of the result of a recent investigation he made that a large percentage of teachers become weak-minded. As a cause of this condition he spoke of the excessive amount of written work that teachers are required to examine. This work he advised teachers to reduce to a minimum.

MONDAY EVENING

The concert by the Musical Five Company was much appreciated. The company is composed of artists, all of whom are entitled to the splendid reputation that is theirs.

TUESDAY FORENOON

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. W. Lingle.

After a music drill by Prof. Yoder, Dr. Lowden took up the discussion of The Child's Health.

He came before the institute with a hearty "Good morning," then emphasized the value of teachers' going into the school-room bearing sunshine in their faces. On taking up the theme he followed Monday, he said that he believed that the brain is not completely modulated until the age of forty-five. There is danger in specialization unless the person has laid a broad and thorough foundation. He then told of some of the health greetings in different nations. These expressions, which are idioms, have a deep meaning. If we were in Berlin we would be greeted by, "How do you find yourself?" In regard to this the speaker asked whether we are in the attitude of healthfully searching ourselves. If we were in Paris we would be greeted by "How do you carry yourself?" Correct walk and position of the body was then duly emphasized. The speaker then took occasion to criticize the female teacher that stands throughout the entire day. He advised that teachers sit more but warned them that they should not become rooted to the chair. There are times when they should stand. In speaking of the Chinese health greeting, "How have you eaten your rice?" Dr. Lowden said that much depends upon the manner in which food is taken, in order that digestion may not be hindered and that food may be properly assimilated. The Japanese health greeting, "How do you breathe?" Dr. Lowden held had in it something very suggestive for teachers. Speaking on this phase of the subject he urged the value of good ventilation in school rooms and in homes. Physicians have learned that consumptives, in the early stages of the disease, have been cured by breathing pure air.

Type Lesson

Prof. J. Coulter Hockenberry, Professor of Psychology and History of Education, Southwestern State Normal School, California, was then introduced. He took occasion to direct the attention of the institute to some new movements in education. He called attention to the plan of a community, and referred particularly to the school at Abbotsholm in England, founded by Dr. Reddie. In this school pupils are required to assist in satisfying their own needs. Though many are wealthy they must give their labor as assistance. The result of this kind of experiment, the speaker claimed, developed an efficient personality on the part of the pupils. In contrasting these schools with American schools he showed that instruction has the chief place in the American school, while Europeans are beginning to realize that there are many other phases of education, equally important. The work of teachers and pupils must be co-operative in satisfying the needs in an educational community. He further said the ideas of this experiment was not so much to lengthen the hours of study but to enrich them. These schools offer to enrich the middle and ruling classes for leadership.

Order of Development

After a short intermission Dr. Stetson took up the subject, "Order of Development." He made a clear distinction between a mountebank and a scientist by saying that the former uses scientific terms regardless of their true meaning while the true scientist is clear and precise in his use of terms and definitions. This led the speaker to compare the three departments of the old and the new psychology. In both cases he claimed that writers know very little of the first two departments, but that they have a clearer conception of the third. Then he called attention to some of the ridiculous methods followed under the name child study. He advised a rational child study and hoped the day will come when every teacher will be a student of children. He claimed that teachers should learn how children develop. During the tender years between five and eight children should not be cramped in their growth by confinement to books and tasks. To this end teachers should remember that children have a right to grow and that a child should not be sent to school before he is eight years of age. At that age a child can make in a few weeks subjects that it takes them a year or more to master when younger. He lamented that teachers are too skillful in getting children to do difficult things at the tender age. In teaching Dr. Stetson asked the teachers to remember that number work involves processes while arithmetic involves principles. He said the age between eight and twelve is the accumulative age of the child and during that period he should pay attention to memory work and learn processes. In connection with this the speaker referred to the blessing of being able to recall the thoughts of great poets and thinkers. The life of Aret Poesman was cited as one of the most useful in a community because he had noble and great thoughts from great and good men stored up in his mind that served him in times when other men would lose their tempers.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON

The session was opened by singing "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue," after which Prof. B. F. Shaffer of the Tri-State Business College, Cumberland, offered a course of study free to the teacher receiving the largest number of votes from the Bedford institute.

Professor Hockenberry took up The Rural School of the Future.

In opening he said that he came to point the way the rural school is going. He considered his subject one that needs attention now. In the first place, it is necessary to move the needs of the school. The movement must have a leader as all great reform movements must have, and this must be followed by public sentiment. He then showed how the material prosperity of our country has been far in advance of the cultural and religious advancement. The speaker of the rural schools' standing still, and referred to the movement to have a bill passed in the next Legislature to provide a high school inspector. The speaker pictured some of the advantages of centralization, showing clearly the vast increase of opportunities that would be afforded to any community. He stated that power to improve the common school lies within the school itself, and declared that there will be no more educational standards.

Prof. Yoder then favored the institute with a vocal solo after which Dr. Stetson discussed

Historical Work For Teachers

He began by saying that when we think of American history the mind naturally turns to the date 1492, and if we study deeper into the world's history, 1066 and 450 become significant dates. He asked his hearers to go back with him many centuries to a spot near Central Asia, where the human race originated. From this spot he pictured a little stream bubbling from the ground, and from a tower which he would place near by he asked his hearers to watch the dividing and the branching of the stream. Though he pointed out how diversity wrought changes in a people and formed divisions which were later called nations. From this tower he could be viewed India, whose people laid the foundation for subtle philosophy; Persia, whose people gave to the world the foundations of science; Egypt, the builder of pyramids, where we get out ideas of stretch and magnitude; Greece, the land in which was developed the aesthetic; Rome, who ruled the world from her seven hills and developed the desire to rule; the Celts of western Europe, who beheld the skies in their joys and looked to the depths in their sorrows, developed an ardent imagination; the old Slavs, the European race that clings to oriental customs. Here he stopped to prophesy great changes in her future. Her statesmen saw that the U. S. was to be the mistress of the western continent while she would become the mistress of the east; and he said she is the nation that holds the past and scans the future. In Judea we can see the Hebrew, devout and reverent, giving to the world a holy religion. In the Teutonic race he characterized its men as hard fighters, great drinkers, lovers of liberty and great men responsible for all under his own hat. This race in coming in contact with the other races absorbed all their characteristics. The Teuton was the only one who could analyze his own feelings and could sit down and reprimand himself and come out a better man. Then the settlement of America by the Puritan and the Cavalier was taken up, in which the speaker claimed that their coming together to form a nation made a better third. The speaker advised his hearers to read biographies and the masters in history. He spoke of "Sam" Adams as one who saw not only the beginning but the end of the Revolutionary struggle. In reference to biography John G. Holland's Life of Abraham Lincoln is a valuable book to read that Lincoln may be better understood. Then in conclusion—"He who stands and waits" serves; "We must know to train."

Effective and Ineffective Teaching

Dr. Lowden took for his talk the conditions under which effective teaching can be done. If a man has knowledge his knowledge will determine his actions. Here the speaker drew the distinction between a mere verbal knowledge and an understanding knowledge. The Greeks believed that knowledge is virtue. What is knowledge, Dr. Lowden holds, must terminate in some practical service. He then said that the whole educational system of our common schools is based upon the intellectual side, and went on to show that man must feel and know and do. He emphasized by varied and apt illustration the German expression "sprach gefühl." He accounts for so much poor teaching in language and reading on the ground that the teacher and the pupil do not get the "sprach gefühl." To illustrate he said he did not get hold of the spirit of Snowbound until he saw a snow storm in New England. He acknowledged guessing by calling it a form of lying. In respect to what is known as the pouring in and drawing out process in teaching, the unskilful teacher will pour in a hoghead and draw out a gill while the skilful teacher will pour in a pint and draw out a barrel. We should give the child correct habits of study.

TUESDAY EVENING

The experiences of "The Poet Scout" held the attention of the audience for two hours. Captain Jack occupies a place unique on the American platform. He is not the polished product of a long course of training, but acts and speaks as he would among his comrades in the war or upon the Indian trail. He is a natural-born entertainer.

WEDNESDAY FORENOON

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. H. B. Townsend. Prof. H. D. Metzger, chairman of the Teachers' Reading Course Committee, presented the report which was adopted, recommending that "Roark's Elements of Psychology," Hamilton's "The Recitation," and some periodical on education be used by the teachers for professional reading, and English classics "The Merchant of Venice" and Franklin's Autobiography.

Literary Training For Teachers

Dr. Stetson said too much time is spent in talking about helping children. The personality of the teacher is valuable. It is not so much the effort put forth to teach that influences the child as the general influence that the teacher wields. The boy had the right kind of teacher whom he described as "leaking information."

We need to know more about our mother tongue. If you should say to a man "You are a heathen," what should he think? The original meaning of the word is neighbor. To have a clear conception of the English idiom is important. There are three great blessings in life. To be born in the country, to be born poor, and the greatest is to be born young. The common school teacher needs to know what is going on at the present time.

Don't get the idea that you must have all books. Webster read a few books and absorbed what was in them. Lincoln got his power in the English language by knowing thoroughly the language of the few books he read. Dr. Stetson then named a list of literary productions, and said that the Canterbury Tales should be read to get the description of characters in Chaucer's time; The Faerie Queene should be read to get the personification of virtues; Addison and Steel for expression, Burns and Wordsworth to find an appreciation of nature. He then advised the reading of Emerson for philosophy and Macaulay for well-rounded sentences. He spoke of Charles Wagner as giving to the world the same thought that Walter Savage Landor gave. In conclusion he advised the teachers to read for ideas instead of facts.

Miss Retta C. Steck recited the court scene from Merchant of Venice and as an encore "The Unexpected Guests."

Effective and Ineffective Teaching

Rhythm, said Dr. Lowden, is like many other common things in life; we know what it is but we cannot define it. It might be defined as being ever the same but constantly changing. There is rhythm in every aspect of life, because life is always the same yet constantly changing. Our lives depend upon the rhythm of our daily life. This rhythm is both psychological and physical. It is well to have children commit rhymes that they may have a store of gems treasured up. If the words do not remain the rhythm remains in the soul. It effects the life, the work, the philosophy and the very religion of man.

The teacher should regard the rhythm in the child's life in order to be successful. Programs should be made in accordance with this. Teachers should look beyond the walls of their school rooms to understand the rhythm of the child's life. Few mothers know how to prepare a breakfast for school children. Then the speaker outlined a program for the child's daily life. In this there are three factors to be considered: The child, the subject matter, the teacher. The best part of the day is the morning, and it was suggested that the morning should be given to subjects like arithmetic and grammar. When teachers and pupils are disinterested in a subject it should be given an important place on the program.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

A Master's Message

Dr. Stetson raised the query, "Is it worth while to spend a great deal of time on reading?" If it means getting the thought and spirit of the books it is worth while. Can you read people from an exterior view? The child's daily life. In this there are three factors to be considered: The child, the subject matter, the teacher. The best part of the day is the morning, and it was suggested that the morning should be given to subjects like arithmetic and grammar. When teachers and pupils are disinterested in a subject it should be given an important place on the program.

The speaker then showed a number of copies of good painting and explained them, being The Greek Slave and the Breaking of Home Ties. Of the latter he emphasized that the mother was the uncrowned queen, sorry to see her son depart. The Helping Hand was then explained and in conclusion the speaker emphasized the fact that these masterpieces are fitting crowns for labor.

Dr. Lowden then took up the subject

SAN JOSE SCALE

Is Prevalent in Many Parts of This County.

My report up to date shows that of the 665 orchards inspected 290 are infested with San Jose Scale to a greater or less extent. Some sections have but little scale, while others have the greater number of orchards infested.

Often only one or two trees are infested but that will be sufficient to pollute a neighborhood in a few years.

It was the idea of the Department of Agriculture, and this idea was carried out by myself as demonstrator, to hold spraying demonstrations every five miles, in some orchard conveniently located, throughout the infested districts. Sixteen demonstrations were planned and held showing how to make and prepare the wash for spraying, during which time, the life history and habits of the scale was fully explained. Other scale insects commonly found in an orchard were considered and the best remedies, their power of killing scale insects and fungus diseases were carefully considered. The application of the wash followed showing the reasons for careful, thorough work. The attendance, however, did not exceed one hundred at the whole sixteen demonstrations. Four averaged over a dozen, while twelve of them were five and less. More interest must be manifested to meet and fight the San Jose Scale successfully. Spraying must be done and that thoroughly if fruit is to be raised uninfested.

The inspection and demonstration work will be carried on until the county is covered and every orchard inspected. These demonstrations may never be offered again and hereafter no one can be excused on the ground of ignorance. Spraying must be done if first class fruit is to be raised and an opportunity like this should not be let pass unattended.

R. F. Lee, Inspector and Demonstrator.

A POOR ORGAN

Damn's the bile. That's what your liver does if it's torpid. Then the bile overflows into the blood, poisons your system, causing sick-headache, biliousness, sallow skin, coated tongue, sick stomach, dizziness, fainting spells, etc. Jtamon's treatment of Liver Pills and Tonic Pills strengthens the liver and makes it do its own work. Prevents and cures these troubles. It aids—doesn't force. Entire treatment 25c—J. R. Irvine & Co.

To send a card asking for our catalog, setting forth the advantages enjoyed by the students who attend The State Normal at Indiana, and it may be the turning point in the life of your son or daughter. An education obtained in a good normal school fits for life and business, as do other schools, but its diploma has a peculiar legal value that should not be overlooked. It makes its possessor a legally qualified teacher in the State for life.

None of us can look very far into the future. Your daughter may need to teach now, and may lay her normal diploma away, never intending to use it. But some disaster in her life may make it necessary for her to earn her living, and that diploma would prove her value as a teacher in a school where a diploma has such value.

The Indiana State Normal was founded by the General Assembly in 1871; it is one of the best known schools of its kind in the land, and the expense of attending it is as low as can be found in any normal institution of learning.

Our Winter Term will open, January 1. If you desire further information about this school, address the Principal, James E. Allen, M. D., Indiana, Pa. Box 741.

A man with a sprained ankle will use a crutch, rest the ankle and let it get well. A man or woman with an over-worked stomach can't use a crutch, but the stomach must have rest just the same. It can be rested too without starvation. Kodol will do it. Kodol performs the digestive work of the tired stomach and corrects the digestive apparatus. Kodol fully conforms to the provisions of the National Pure Food and Drug Laws. Recommended and sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

To the $25,000 Fund for the Hunt-

POOR AND FRIENDLESS

Children at Thanksgiving Time—
Teachers Should Encourage Pupils to Give Assistance.

Many persons are interested in the result of the recent effort to replenish the Treasury of the Home. This has been one of the most strenuous years in our history, owing to the fact that a special movement is under way to raise a permanent endowment fund for supervision. For a number of years no general opportunity was given to the public to contribute. All expenses were met by funds from regular sources, and from friends who keep the work constantly in mind.

One of the main purposes in sending out over 5,000 circulars and cards was to awaken a new interest in the Home. It is also desirable to have the interest widespread. These circulars were, however, mainly limited to three counties. Cards of acknowledgment have been sent to all whose addresses were plainly given, and we take this opportunity to further express the thanks of the Board.

It will be seen from the figures below that a comparatively small percentage of cards was returned. Many will no doubt come in later. We would kindly urge that this opportunity to identify, in a small way, with a good work be not overlooked. The Christmas season will be a timely occasion to remember the Home.

It was impossible to send cards to all persons who would be glad to respond to such an appeal. May we say that at no time in the history of the Home has small contributions in

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle

Home of Swamp-Root, by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Birmingham, N. Y., on every bottle.

large numbers been so needful. The endowment fund is growing by the addition of larger amounts. And persons of means are generally disposed to think favorably of a scheme which provides for the public good in perpetual form.

No one ever becomes thoroughly interested in any good cause until he makes some sacrifice for it, or at least gives of his abundance. We cannot expect the public to feel the interest those feel who for twenty-five years have nursed and nurtured this work and seen its results. It is our purpose to keep in close touch with all persons who show interest in the cause, and for that reason we wish the names and addresses of every contributor.

Do not destroy the cards that have fallen into your hands. Sometime during the year you may be in position to return them, or give them to some one who will.

We had a special purpose in sending these cards to all the teachers in the several counties,—numbering over seven hundred.

(1) It is a good object lesson for the children to have presented to them some practical form of benevolence, and teach them to share their little joys with the less fortunate.

(2) The children of the Home go into many sections. They are never despised by the children who are taught to help them, or at least sympathize with them.

The reports of the teachers who responded show delightful enthusiasm. If every scholar should cast a penny into this fund, and the significance of that be clearly impressed by the teacher, for a generation we should have a new social sentiment in this valley. Of course the Home needs the help just now. Last year it drew on its reserve fund, over $500, and until the endowment fund is completed and interest bearing, we must count on a large deficiency for the next year. Will not each one take the matter to heart, and by a united effort, a free outpouring of the benevolent spirit, and the practice of a little self-denial, round out the work within the year and complete the best organization for the help of poor children in the state? Gather up the envelopes having the name of Mr. Simpson, Treas., and send him under at Christmas time. Some persons are working hard, not as beggars, but in getting facts before the people in a way not to offend and yet secure the growth of a sentiment that will abide and sustain the work.

Mr. Simpson offers the following report of the result of the Thanksgiving contributions: Total amt. rec'd. to date...$501.15 From individuals whose addresses are given...428.56 Miscellaneous, Churches, Schools, anonymous, etc...72.43 From Huntingdon county (town included)...192.72 From Bedford county...130.45 From Mifflin county...117.98 From Blair county...5.10 From Montgomery county...21.00 From Franklin county...5.00 From Philadelphia...20.00 From Maryland...1.90 From unknown address...6.90 Number of contributors 425.

Thirteen schools contributed $17.26, averaging $1.23 each. The letters accompanying these contributions indicate much interest on the part of the children. Teachers who encourage the children in their little gifts do a work for the future of the Home which cannot be estimated.

We are particularly grateful for contributions from this source. J. R. SIMPSON, Treas. December 12, 1906.

The above amounts cover only what came in response to the Thanksgiving circulars, and does not include annual contributions paid previously. Some teachers have requested that cards, containing the pictures of the children of the Home, be sent to all the children who contributed. This we will gladly do for all who apply.

Through all the years we have avoided personal solicitation. With the larger outlook and the important proposition on hand we must kindly ask our friends to give substantial evidence of their sympathy if they believe in the cause. D. Emmert.

DON'TS FOR RECEIVING

A Few Words on Manners in Christmas Time.

Don't receive ungraciously. Even if you don't like what you get, pretend to, so far as you can. This is not mean gushing.

Don't count your gifts aloud, and then boast of the number; nothing is so execrable.

Don't insist on showing your gifts to every chance caller for the next two weeks after Christmas. For intimate friends this is well enough, but don't keep it up too long; even friends' admiration has its limits.

Don't expect a present because you give one. This makes of Christmas a time for barter—an objection often, with some truth, alas! raised against Christmas giving.

Don't apologize if you have received and not given; it is most unpleasant on both sides.

Don't be ungracious if you receive a gift from someone "beneath" you; it may have been given in all sincerity, not to propitiate or to curry favor. The receiving of unwelcome favors is one of the hardest things to endure, but we all have to endure it sometimes; at Christmas let it be done graciously.

Don't make fun of anything that is given you, no matter what it is; this is the "beyond which not" of bad taste.

Don't put off writing your notes of thanks too long; and don't make them too long when you do write them. If you have something definite and pleasant to say about the gift, say it with sincerity; but don't rush meaningless. It is most unpleasant to be gushed at about a present that the giver feels sure was not a success.

Couldn't Lift Ten Pounds.

Doan's Kidney Pills Brought Strength and Health to the Sufferer, Making Him Feel Twenty-Five Years Younger.

Sick kidneys cause a weak, lame or aching back, and a weak back makes a weak man. Can't be well and strong until the kidneys are cured. Treat them with Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's the testimony of one man cured.

J. B. CORTON.

I could have raised ten pounds of weight from the ground, the pain was so severe. This was my condition when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They quickly relieved me and now I am never troubled as I was. My back is strong and I can walk or ride a long distance and feel just as strong as I did twenty-five years ago. I think so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that I have given a supply of the remedy to some of my neighbors and they have also found good results. If you can sift anything from this rambling note that will be of any service to you, or to any one suffering from kidney trouble, you are at liberty to do so.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Corton will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Containing HONEY AND TAR

All cough syrups containing opiates constipate the bowels. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar moves the bowels and contains no opiates.

Danger in Asking Advice When you have a cough or cold do not ask some one what is good for it, as there is danger in taking some unknown preparation. Foley's Honey and Tar cures coughs, colds, and prevents pneumonia. The genuine is in a yellow package. Refuse substitutes. Ed. D. Heckerman.

It is noticeable a cold seldom comes on when the bowels are freely open. Neither can it stay if they are open. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup tastes as pleasant as maple sugar. Free from all opiates. Contains Honey and Tar. Conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup, the new Laxative, stimulates, but does not irritate. It is the best Laxative. Guaranteed or your money back. Ed. D. Heckerman.

The New York World

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read Wherever the English Language is Spoken.

The Thrice-a-Week World, now that a great Presidential campaign is foreshadowed, hopes to be a better paper than it has ever been before, and it has made its arrangements accordingly. Its news service covers the entire globe, and it reports everything fully, promptly and accurately. It is the only newspaper, not a daily, which is as good as a daily, and which will keep you as completely informed of what is happening through out the world.

The Thrice-a-Week World is fair in its political reports. You can get the truth from its columns, whether you are a Republican or Democrat, and that is what you want.

A special feature of the Thrice-a-Week World has always been its serial fiction. It publishes novels by the best authors in the world, novels which in book form sell for $1.50 apiece, and its high standard in this respect will be maintained in the future as in the past.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Gazette together for one year for $2.20.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

HINTS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS.---It may save you hours to read this page today---lots of time, walking and much fatigue. The forehanded man or woman makes a list of those to be remembered at Christmas---writes a suggestive gift by each name, appropriates the amount to be expended, and gets the shopping done in a jiffy---sees most, has best choice, and sits back to laugh at the eleventh-hour shopper.

Satisfactory Underwear AT POPULAR PRICES

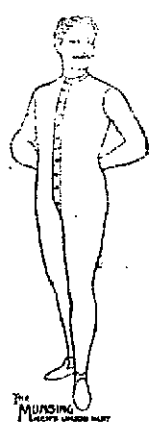

We are pleased to announce that we have the agency for the Celebrated Perfect Fitting Munsing Union Suits. We know of no other brand of underwear that combines so many good qualities and that may be had for so little money. The garments are knit from yarns of fine quality, are thoroughly well made and reliable, fit well, wear well, look well and have given more satisfaction to our trade than any underwear we have ever sold.

People who have once worn them will buy no other kind. They cost no more than the common kind that do not fit.

Men's Union Suits at $1.25, $1.75, $2.25, $3 and $3.50.

Ladies' Union Suits at $1, $1.25, $1.50, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50.

Why We Advertise Henderson Corsets It Does Not Pay Us To Advertise a Poor Thing

To urge, advise and recommend that you buy some inferior article hurts us, because you will remember the injury we have done you---because you have a degree of confidence in us and we cannot afford to push an unsatisfactory item. This applies to corsets with perhaps greater force than with any other article of wear. And we advertise Henderson Corsets because, while the profit is small, the satisfaction to the wearer is great, and second sales come without effort on our part. Women know a good thing when they have tried it. This week we have a full stock of the following:

No. 646---high bust, fine satteen, well reinforced. Sizes 18 to 30 at $1.00.

No. 608, medium high bust, elegant quality Batiste---a very light weight Corset---$1.00.

No. 838 a high and No. 888 a medium high bust Corset---made from fine imported Coutil. These are elegant and very sightly models. The manufacturer says we shall sell them at $1.50---but we are satisfied with a very small margin at $1.25 a pair.

"MIKADO" means better but no higher You Must See These Imported Japanese Dollies and Centerpieces

Are you wondering what Christmas Gift to give those married folks? Why not some Japanese Dollies or a Centerpiece? Now ready, a new importation of them from the famous Mikado factories in Japan. They come in elaborate Drawn Work Patterns, some embroidered in rich designs. We're never tired of speaking about the fine Drawn Work that comes from Japan. Every woman appreciates the skillful work. The Hand-Drawn Dollies, Centerpieces and Drawn Scarfs make appropriate and acceptable Christmas Gifts. Mexican drawn-work, after washing, is likely to "crinkle" or break, but Japanese drawn-work lays flat and smooth, no matter how often you wash it. Better make your selection AT ONCE.

HOSIERY

A more suitable gift you cannot find; a half-dozen pairs of stockings will make an acceptable present for any one. We want to tell you about a special number, in children's hosiery, today---we call it the Bicycle or Number 55. When you buy these goods you get your actual money's worth in stockings; no prizes, premiums or any other inducements offered. The Number 55 sells on merit. It's guaranteed because it's made so good that there's no room left for doubt about the quality. This Bicycle or No. 55 is a new stocking made by the most improved methods from the strongest hosiery yarn obtainable. It's knitted, shaped, dyed and finished in the best manner possible. 12 1/2c, 15c and 18c a pair, according to size.
